How to prepare guava

scopes in Java? I am writing a Java based REST API using Guava. I am facing an issue related to Guava scopes. The API endpoints accept a normal Map containing key-values. In case of complex keys, I need to break them down and store them in multiple scopes. // Given

    = new HashMap>();
    map.put("employee",
map.entrySet());

Given the above example, I need to break it into multiple scopes. // Need to convert this Map> properties into: Map> employees = new HashMap>(); I understand that scopes in Guava basically give us an advanced way of handling polymorphic maps but the thing is - I don't want to go with Map as I would like to have a separate scope for each key-type.
